CHAMBERLAIN ASKS EMPIRE TO REMAIN CALM

KING GEORGE OF BRITAIN ORDERS OUT AIR FORCES

Ruler Declares Case of Emergency Exists as Hitler Stands Firm

London, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Official Gazette today published a royal order from King George declaring "a case of emergency exists" and authorizing the calling of auxiliary air forces for defense.

An order in council authorizing the calling up of defense units in the air force was issued yesterday, but the full order declaring the existence of a state of emergency was not disclosed until its publication in the Official Gazette.

Viscount Gort, chief of the imperial general staff, and Marshal Sir Cyril Newall, air chief, conferred with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today, strengthening the belief that Adolf Hitler was obdurate in his "final" demands on Czechoslovakia.

The conference took place after Sir Horace Wilson, close adviser to the prime minister, flew back from Berlin after two meetings with the German chancellor in a desperate effort to stave off war.

The fact that Viscount Gort and Sir Cyril called on Chamberlain immediately after Sir Horace's talks with Hitler was taken as an ominous sign.

The prime minister will tell the whole story to Parliament tomorrow and many believed national conscription plans were in readiness.

'Tapering Off' TO STUDY WHAT WAR WILL MEAN

Farley Absent on Speech-making Trip as Session is Convened

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called his cabinet into session today for a momentous discussion of what war in Europe would mean to the United States.

Nine of the ten members were at hand.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, who has been keeping out of town speaking engagements, was the only absentee.

That war would affect all sections of American economy and raise innumerable legal and international problems has been accepted generally.

The president laid before the cabinet the replies to his Monday peace message received from President Benes of Czechoslovakia and Premier Chamberlain of Great Britain and Daladier of France, and Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

Hitler's reply late.

Hitler's reply, a day later than the others, came today.

In it, the reichsfuehrer agreed that the effects of war would be devastating, expressed appreciation of Roosevelt's "high-minded intentions," and then set forth his thesis that if war did come, it would not be the fault of Germany.

Hitler apparently drafted the message after his radio speech yesterday, in which he bitterly attacked President Benes of Czechoslovakia. Some officials here believed the attack would have been even sharper had Hitler not been handed the president's appeal before he began speaking.

American officials working for peace drew some encouragement from the hopeful tone of Benes' reply to the president.

"I believe that even today the dispute could be settled without resort to force."

Pray for Peace

Dozer, N. J., Sept. 27.—(AP)—This town of 11,000 persons, many of whom work in huge munitions plants, will cease activity Friday for a one-minute prayer for world peace.

Mayor John Roach, a World War veteran, issued a proclamation announcing that the fire alarm would signal the noon prayer-time and that traffic lights would flash red to halt all vehicles. He asked that churches toll their bells and all industrial plants and offices suspend work for a minute.

Summary of Today's News in War Threatened Europe Compiled from Associated Press Cabled Reports

Meat of Day's News Told in Paragraphs For Our Readers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Adolf Hitler told President Roosevelt today it was "solely in the hands of Czechoslovak government" whether Europe has peace or war, while the government radio in Prague broadcast indignantly that Hitler's demands showed a "brutal desire to crush Czechoslovakia as a free state."

In a long communication replying to President Roosevelt's appeal for peace, Hitler carefully marshalled Germany's whole case and appealed to the president's understanding.

"I have the conviction," he wrote, "that as you visualize the entire development of the Sudeten German problem from its beginning until the present day, you will realize that the German government certainly was not wanting in patience or a sincere will to peaceful understanding."

(Story on page 10.)

The Prague broadcast, made about the same time Czechoslovakia's note refusing Hitler's latest demands was made public in London, declared that if the fuhrer's demands were met "Czechoslovakia would be so weakened in a military way that the greatest part of her territory, notably Bohemia and Moravia, would be at the mercy of Germany."

Some quarters saw new hope of a peaceful solution in a visit by Sir Horace Wilson, close adviser to British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, to Hitler in Berlin, a meeting which fulfilled the hope expressed by President Roosevelt that negotiations would not be broken off. Wilson returned to London later today.

Both Germany and the little central European republic, however, appeared to be sticking firmly to positions which held the dangers of a general European conflict and caused Europe to rush war preparations at top speed. The United States embassy in London urged Americans in Great Britain "to arrange to return to the United States" if they could do so.

London ordered her two deep-sea submarines, in the heart of the city, closed for transformation into air raid shelters.

The British army in Palestine and British forces throughout the near and middle east prepared to defend the empire's vital life lines in event of a general conflict.

White-haired David Lloyd George, who has had more experience dealing with Germans both during and after the World War than any other prime minister, called for a clear British-French stand to "resist aggression."

"We can hardly abandon the Czechs who acted upon our counsel without dishonor to ourselves," he wrote in a letter to the South Wales Liberal Federation.

Czechoslovakia's minister to London, Jan Masaryk, made public a note handed the British government Sunday, declaring Hitler's latest demands "unconditionally unacceptable" in their present form and promising the "utmost resistance."

The German chancellor's newspaper, on the other hand, said Hitler's speech last night was "the last word spoken by Germany in this conflict."

In that speech, Hitler demanded that Czechoslovakia cede Sudetenland to Germany by October 1 and asserted this was "a demand on which I will not yield."

But Europe had not given up hope of a peaceful settlement. Chamberlain broadcast an appeal for peace at 8 P. M. (1 P. M., CST.) tonight, from the cabinet room at 10 Downing Street.

"I cannot abandon my peace efforts," Chamberlain said.

Britain already had given an authoritative warning, however, that "Great Britain and Russia will stand by France," who is bound by treaty to aid Czechoslovakia against attack.

In Geneva Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Russia's commissar of foreign affairs, was reported to have proposed a mighty, three-power military alliance.

Very Sympathetic

Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Justice Percy G. West was all sympathy as a woman suing for return of money she paid for a permanent wave told her woes.

"Now, your honor," said Alice Conley, combing her shoulder length hair with her fingers, "would you pay $7.50 for a wave like this?"

"Young woman," replied the judge, fingering his bald pate, "I'd pay $100 if I could get a wave like that."

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER MADE PLEA BY RADIO

Says He Will Continue to Seek Way to Peace Until Last Hour

London, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared tonight "we can not undertake to involve the whole of the British empire in war however much we may sympathize with a small nation."

But at another point in his broadcast to the empire and the world the prime minister said: "If I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by force I would not hesitate to resist it."

Chamberlain spoke only about six minutes, beginning at 8 P. M. (1 P. M., C. S. T.) His address, the most momentous British broadcast since the abdication crisis of 1936, was delivered from the cabinet room of famed 10 Downing street.

After he had finished his speech was broadcast in German.

Chamberlain said he would not hesitate to take a third trip to Germany if he thought it would do any good, but at the moment "I can see nothing further that I can usefully do in the way of mediation."

"If I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by force I would not hesitate to resist it."

"But I shall not give up my hope for a peaceful solution."

He told the world: "Tomorrow parliament is going to meet and I shall be making a first statement on the events which have led up to the present critical situation. An earlier statement would have been impossible while I was flying backwards and forwards across Europe and the position was changing from hour to hour."

"But today there is a lull for a brief time and I want to say a few words to you men and women of Britain and perhaps to others as well . . ."

"I have done all that one man can do to halt this war."

"Tomorrow I shall be making a full statement of events which led up to the anxious present situation."

"I thank those who have written to me and my wife and myself."

"It has been heart-breaking to me when they thought too soon that the danger of war was past."

"Horribly Incredible"

"How horribly incredible that we should be digging trenches and trying on gas masks because of a quarrel which is taking place in a far away country."

"I can well understand the reasons why the Czech government have felt unable to accept the terms which have been put to them in the German memorandum."

"Yet I believe, after my talks with Herr Hitler, that it ought to be possible to arrange for transferring the territory that the Czech government has agreed to give to Germany by agreement under conditions which would insure fair treatment to the population concerned."

"After my first visit to Berchtesgaden, I did get to the Czech government the proposals which gave the substance of what Herr Hitler wanted, and I was taken completely by surprise when I got back to Germany and found that he insisted that the territory should be handed over to him immediately, and immediately occupied by German troops without previous arrangements for safeguarding the people within the territory who were not Germans and who did not want to join the German reich."

"Had Guaranteed Pledge."

"I must say that I find that attitude unreasonable. If it arises out of any doubts that Herr Hitler feels about the intentions of the Czech government to carry out their promises and hand over the territory, I have offered on the part of the British government to guarantee their words, and I am sure the value of our promise will not be underrated anywhere."

"I shall not give up the hope of peaceful solution or abandon my efforts for peace as long as any chance for peace remains."

"I would not hesitate to pay even a third visit to Germany if I thought it would do any good."

At one point, the prime minister said:

TO AID REFUGEES

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—American warships sped toward Europe today for possible service in returning refugees or other duty in the event of war.

The Navy said the cruiser Savannah which sailed Saturday from Philadelphia and the destroyer Somers which left Norfolk the same day would proceed to British ports.

They were said officially merely to be on "routine duty."

Already at Portsmouth, England, is the cruiser Honolulu, and in the Mediterranean is the cruiser Omaha and two destroyers, the Claxton and Manley. The new cruiser Nashville is enroute home from a training cruise to European ports.

Unidentified Young Woman's Body Found in Galesburg Field

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The body of a young woman, about 20 years old and auburn-haired, was found in a corn field near here yesterday by Carl Hessler, a farmer.

Coroner G. S. Bower announced today that an autopsy performed upon the body showed the young woman had been killed by a bullet. The coroner said the woman had been beaten and probably strangled. The autopsy showed that the bullet entered behind one ear and exited at the other. The body had been dragged into the field. Plaster casts were taken of a man's footprint found at the scene. Distinguishing marks on the body included three missing teeth.

Authorities believed the woman had been dead about a week. She was clothed only in a slip and shoes and stockings. On one of her fingers was a gold wedding ring, but it bore no name nor initials.

New Trial is Asked for Convicted Killer

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Superior Judge Russell W. Smith had before him today a motion for a new trial for Orelle J. Easton, 25, of Valley City, N. D., convicted of slaying State Policeman W. Raymond Dixon of South Bend.

Arguments have not yet been scheduled on the motion, drawn up by Attorney Paul Krueger of Michigan City. Easton has been sentenced to die in the state prison on electric chair January 13 for Dixon's shooting near here June 26.

Krueger gave 12 reasons for asking another trial. One was that a thirteenth juror was chosen in addition to the 12 who convicted Easton August 27, another that the public was excluded from the courtroom during reading of the verdict.

Easton was arrested and his brother, Clarence, 26, was killed by a posse near Deselm, Ill., the day after the slaying. They were charged with a series of robberies.

Bluffton College President Resigns

Bluffton, Ohio, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, for the past three years president of Bluffton College, resigned today upon the advice of physicians who said he was suffering from nervous disorders due to overwork.

The board of trustees named Dean J. S. Schultz as chairman of a committee to handle the college administration temporarily.

Dr. Rosenberger came here from Quakertown, Pa., and formerly held a pastorate in Berne, Ind. He also was widely-known in Menomonee settlements in Kansas, Iowa, Illinois and California.

Belgian Reservists Called to Colors

Brussels, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Belgium called six classes of army reservists to the colors today after Premier Paul Henri Spaak and Defense Minister Lt.-Gen. Henri Denis conferred at length with King Leopold.

A communique said the decision was "solely inspired by a desire for security and peace." It added that the government also was considering necessary economic measures.

CHILD HIT BY AUTO

Master Paul Fry, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fry, 210 Third street, suffered minor bruises about the head and body yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock when he was struck and thrown by a car driven by Dick Stanley of this city.

The little fellow started across the street near his home and ran in front of the machine. He was removed to a physician's office where examination revealed only minor injuries and after these were treated he was taken to his home.

"Americanism" Big Issue Lyons States

Mt. Carroll, Ill., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for the United States senate, today told a regional meeting of party women leaders "the fundamental issue of this campaign is Americanism."

"This is no longer a partisan political fight," Lyons said, "but a desperate struggle of Americans against those elements, both in and out of public office, who wish to destroy our system of government."

Lyons said he was the object of "persistent attacks" by a Communist candidate, adding that attacks from "such a source" furnish "the best evidence that the principles which I advocate, and which the Republican party stands for, are opposed to the subversive doctrines of foreign governments."

"It is significant, too," Lyons said, "that the Communist party has officially endorsed the New Deal as offering the best opportunity to superimpose communistic ideas on our form of government."

TREASURY WILL NOT BE AFFECTED BY CONFLICT

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau assured the nation today the treasury was prepared for any eventualities from the European crisis.

He did not say what preparations had been made, but he implied that, for the protection of American business and finance, the administration's financial leaders had drafted a program dealing with these questions which would arise in case of war abroad:

1. Should the stock markets be closed?
2. What should be done to protect the dollar in foreign markets?
3. What should be done about all the foreign money which has come here in recent weeks in search of safety?

The stock market question was answered on high authority last week in the negative.

Morgenthau apparently had in mind primarily the other two questions when he told reporters yesterday:

"I like to think that the treasury always is ready for any situation and as far as humanly possible to get ready, the treasury is prepared."

He declined to go into details.

Watermains in New Shawneetown Laid

Shawneetown, Ill., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The first house will be moved tomorrow at new Shawneetown, but it will be moved off the site, not onto it.

The house is situated on land purchased for the new site, and will be wheeled to another part of the farm.

The moving of buildings and houses from old Shawneetown will begin within a week or 10 days, officials said. They will be wheeled about three miles along route 13, while regular traffic is detoured.

The laying of five carloads of water mains began today. The sewer system was about finished.

Souvenirs Pa?

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A restaurant where a Dauphin county jury took its meals billed County Controller J. Montgomery Trace for ten forks and three spoons.

The restaurant said the eating utensils disappeared from a basket used in serving the jurors.

Americans in Europe Advised to Get Out: Those Here Stay Out

London, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The United States embassy in London today urged Americans in Great Britain "to arrange to return to the United States" if they could do so.

The department made an exception to its strong advice only in "cases of absolute necessity."

The state department's announcement read:

"Reports reaching the state department from nearly all sections of Europe emphasize the increasing difficulties of travel and the delays being experienced by Americans in obtaining immediate passage home."

"In the circumstances the department of state strongly advises all American citizens for the time being to forego travel to Europe, except in cases of absolute necessity."

Runaway Crane Stopped Before It Crashed Into North Side Grocery

The Shappert Engineering Company's large crane, which was used in building the new dam, was moved to the north approach to the Galena avenue bridge this morning and started dismantling the two remaining spans of the old bridge structure. As the crane was being maneuvered into position at the north approach, the operator threw it out of gear, and the heavy machine rolled down the grade and was headed directly into the side of the Sproul grocery.

Superintendent Max Summers, who was directing operations, succeeded in halting the heavy crane by throwing timbers beneath the caterpillar traction and thus prevented what might have resulted in a serious accident.

Work was started at 8 o'clock this morning on removing the two remaining steel spans from the north side. As soon as the north span is dismantled, it will be pulled from the supporting pier and dropped into the river, then to be cut up in sections with acetylene torches and junked. The contractor will start work on the building of a tramway from the north bank as soon as the pier is removed and operations will be under way in full force from both banks of the river within a few days.

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The state department "strongly advised" Americans today to forego travel to Europe.

The department warning was based upon reports reaching here from nearly all sections of Europe that travel there was becoming increasingly difficult.

Delays are being experienced by American citizens, the department said, in obtaining immediate passage home.

Of Interest to Farmers

D. H. S. Chapter

Spotted Poland Chinas

By Ellwood McCleary, Reporter
The enrollment of the Dixon Future Farmers chapter totals 46 this year, of which 18 are freshmen.

A special meeting was held Sept. 9 to elect officers for the first semester. The following members were elected:

Gene Baker, president; Robert Hill, vice president; Elmer Ringler Jr., secretary; Wayne Miller, treasurer; Kenneth Hendershot, program chairman; Ellwood McCleary, reporter; Gene Baker, captain of soft ball team; Kenneth Hendershot, manager of soft ball team.

On Oct. 1, Dixon will send two teams to compete in the state judging contest at the University of Illinois. The boys who are fighting for a chance on the meat judging team are: Robert Hill, Elmer Ringler Jr., Warren Schultze, Merle Smith and Gail Harms. Three will be selected for the team.

Kenneth Hecker, Gilbert Scheffler and Elwyn Swegle are working on the milk judging team. The team that gets first place in each division, gets all its expenses paid to the national judging contest at Kansas City, Mo., that is held Oct. 15.

All contestants in the milk and meat judging contest for vocational agriculture students will be given complimentary tickets to the football game played between the University of Illinois and DePaul university on Saturday afternoon.

Gene Baker and Robert Hill were sent as delegates to the annual district convention of the F. F. A. held at Pines state park on Saturday, Sept. 17. The following report is by Robert Hill:

On Saturday, Sept. 17, 1938, Gene Baker, our F. F. A. president, and myself attended the Future Farmers sectional meeting at the Pines state park. There were about sixty-five boys from different schools in Section 1. The vice president of Section 1 took charge of the meeting. He is Burnell Henert from Ashton.

At the meeting different questions came up for consideration. The different schools should have a write-up in the farm paper of the state in different months. Dixon is to have a write up in the January issue. A hard baseball game came up in place of soft ball but was vetoed in favor of softball. Basketball is to be continued as in other years. The vice president sends out a schedule of games in softball and basketball to each chapter in Section 1, stating which teams will play against each other.

The vice president of the section said that different schools are having sweaters with emblems on them. All were in favor of the sweaters. The Future Farmers public speaking contest will be held at Ashton high school some time in April. They voted in favor of having English teachers for the judges from different schools.

Dixon entered a 4-H club grain judging team in the county elimination contest held at the Amboy high school Saturday morning, Oct. 24. The winner of this contest is to represent the county in the state grain judging contest to be held at the college of agriculture, Urbana, on Oct. 1.

THIS WEEK'S WEATHER

The Mystery of Sunshine

Would there be sunshine if there were nothing for the sun to shine on? Is there sunshine in perfectly empty space? Where does sunshine go? Astronomers think the sun pours out energy in every direction and, so far as is known, only about one part in 250 million is intercepted by the planets. The rest flies on. Every so often a comet comes near the sun, and light from the sun forces gases out of the comet, the gases making a long streaming vapor tail. Any comet's tail always points away from the sun, no matter from what direction the comet may approach it, showing that there is always light streaming out from the sun in every direction.

Sunlight has much to do with weather. Weather would exist on earth whether the sun shone or not, because these weather waves are generated by the sun's pull on the earth's air envelopes, but the pleasantness of this globe as a place for human beings to live depends on the sun. We could not live here if the sun were to make it so hot the oceans would boil, or should let it freeze until all our water turned to ice. In the four billion years of the earth's history there has never been a time when the oceans were boiling hot or were all frozen solid. The sun pouring out radiance in all directions has been remarkably constant, like a great furnace with a thermostat to control its heat.

And folks this raises a question that nobody has been able to answer. Where does the energy of the sun go after it leaves the sun? So far as we know it goes on in space forever. But this can hardly be the full answer, because Einstein shows that space is curved and if light were to go far enough it would come back, and we don't see this either. Out in space sunlight must turn into something else. Some astronomers think that a part of the sunlight comes back to us as cosmic rays. It is a great mystery, however you look at it.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTMARSH

Chapter 44

Into the fiery furnace. We carried Noah more out and laid him on the scorched grass under the orange trees, and he lay there like a dead thing, eyes closed, breathing hardly perceptibly. Fleuriot dropped on one knee beside him, and would come back, and raised an eyelid.

He turned to Dunning. "Go then to the house, my friend, and see if you can find some brandy." "See here man," said Dunning harshly. "Why all the anxiety about bringing this vermin round? Don't you realize that Miss Willis is in deadly peril, and a minute's delay may mean life or death?"

The man from Marseille looked up at him. "My friend," he answered gently. "This Auberge des Allouettes is probably some small unknown inn and without the help of this wretched clod we may never find it."

Dunning had been fumbling in the pocket of his white coat, and now produced a serviceable-looking flask.

He bent over Fleuriot's shoulder, holding his breath, as I watched the still, putty-colored face on the ground, and gradually it seemed to me that a faint tinge of color spread over it. The eyes opened, staring straight upwards at the night sky and the riding moon, and suddenly there came a cough, a choking convulsion, and Noah More sat up, and stared about him. He pushed the dank hair from his forehead and then suddenly gave a hoarse cry.

"They shan't get me," he gasped. "I won't be caught!" "Get a grip on yourself. No one's going to hurt you." But a gesture from Fleuriot silenced him.

"There is more here than fear of the police," he murmured, and then to the vagrant. "Who is it, then, that you fear?"

The tattered object gave him a swift, sideways glance. His eyes were wild, his fingers plucked and twisted at his tattered shirt. "I don't know," he said scarcely above a whisper. "I can't think. My brain—there's something the matter with my brain." And then, with a swift, crafty look, "And why should I?"

"You're perfectly right, Mr. Noah More, I have nothing against you. I wouldn't say as much for the Club des Sans Clubs."

He gaped at me, his jaw dropped, and his face contorted, and then suddenly he threw back his head and screamed.

"You see," I said, while Fleuriot swore softly to himself. "We know all about it, but if you help us, I guarantee that the police will look after you until all danger is past. You saw something last night in the villa of Monsieur Geiss, didn't you?"

He stared up at me with wild, terrified eyes. "I did not see, but I heard and guessed," he muttered.

"Just so," said I. "You guessed that Geiss had killed Miss Adams, and I think you taxed him with it, to get money from him before he fled."

To Grips With the Fire. He passed a long, bony hand across his eyes. "I knew that it was the end of everything," he said. "The Club des Sans Clubs was finished; Geiss was on the run. When I asked him to settle up, he laughed at me and told me it was cheaper and safer for him to report me to the club as a traitor. Who must be exterminated." He smiled, a wry, drawn smile, and for a moment I saw a shadow of the man he must once have been. "I cannot blame him," he admitted. "For it was his life against mine. He knew I could testify that he had killed that woman, but he knew too that the club would kill first and ask questions afterwards, if once he said the word. That club—'he' shedders. 'You do not know what it is.'"

"Listen, man, you know where this Auberge des Allouettes is?" I asked.

He nodded. "But you will never get there," he said. "Geiss might have got through this morning, but now the place must be a red hell."

"Not half as ruddy as we'll make it when we get there," I retorted. "Come on, you've got to show us the way." With Hugo gripping him by the other arm, we half-dragged half-carried him up the steps, and across the terrace, and in another minute we were packing ourselves into the Hispano.

Dunning, by virtue of his weight, took the place beside Hugo, while Fleuriot and I settled ourselves in the tonneau with the bony form of Noah More wedged between us, and as we swung out of the lane and whizzed off along the highroad, I turned curiously to the vagrant.

"One thing," I said, "before life gets too full for words—do you happen to know just how Geiss got hold of Miss Willis?"

He turned soulless, lack-luster eyes towards me. "It was easy," he answered in his toneless voice. "There is a chambermaid in the Carlton who is a member of the club. Geiss knew that Miss Willis had been absent from the hotel all night, and he instructed this woman to wait in the corridor until she returned, and tell her that, by her uncle's orders, her father had been changed to one at the back. She accepted this without question, and once she was inside the room, we seized her, gagged her, and led her down the fire escape at the back to the lane where Geiss's car was waiting. She fought," he added, with a wan grimace, "but Geiss threatened her with a revolver and forced her to do what we wanted."

We had been running straight towards the cape, with the sea on one hand, redly illumined by the reflection from the flaming cape, and on the other quiet, dusky slopes of woodland, but now we had come into the main street of a village. Here, for the first time, we came to grips with the fire for though the place itself was untouched, it was brightly lit, every inhabitant was out in the street, talking, gesticulating, or standing in frightened silent groups, watching the rim of flame that danced along the crest of the ridge above, threatened every moment to sweep over and come crackling down through the pine trees towards us.

"Death to Venture Further!" There were troops too, infantry of the line and Cossacks. All feet for you, messieurs, but one can only hope that the fire has not yet reached the inn. If it escapes during the night by tomorrow it may be possible to get through."

Fleuriot looked at me. "You hear?" he said, but there was more inquiry than resignation in his tone, and even as he spoke, Hugo swung round; his face, illumined by the ruddy glow, showed hard and drawn and his jaw was set. "You others must do as you please," said he, "but for myself, I'm going through."

Fleuriot gave a short cackle of satisfaction. "You see," he murmured regretfully. "We are willing to take the risk, and the responsibility is not yours, for I am an officer of the law, in pursuit of a dangerous madman who is also a murderer, and these gentlemen are, for the moment, my assistants. I fear that, in this case, my authority overrides yours."

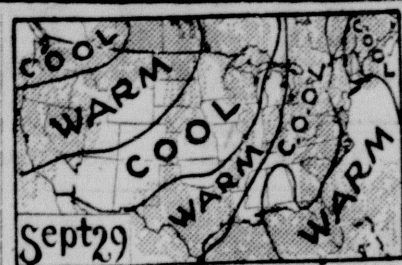

The other hesitated for a moment, and then his hard, smoke-grimed face broke into a smile. "I compliment your courage, messieurs," said he, "and I wish you luck!"

At a word of command from him men came running with wet cloths which we wrapped round our faces, leaving only the eyes and nostrils free, and at the last moment some inventive genius dashed up from the cottage with a water-soaked sheet which we bound about the radiator of the car. In an instant we were off, shooting down the long, curving slope, straight into the fiery furnace below.

Troubadettes are Starting Eighth Season of Song

Last evening was an important autumn date for Troubadette chorus members, marking the beginning of the group's eighth season. Six new members were special guests at a chop suey dinner at a local tea room, which was followed by a business meeting and election of officers at the attractive Chula Vista avenue home of the retiring president, Mrs. Howard M. Edwards.

The party was 23 at dinner, with Miss Olive McClanahan, Miss Ruth Leydig, and Mrs. David Crawford as co-hostesses. Mrs. Edwards presided during the business meeting until election of the new president, Mrs. Archie W. Brown. Miss McClanahan was re-elected to serve as secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. David Crawford, Mrs. W. G. Barthelme, and Mrs. G. H. Stiles are to assist her.

New members welcomed were Mrs. W. G. Barthelme, Mrs. E. H. Bremer, Miss Goldie Albright, Miss Lucille Miller, Miss Lenore Schwab and Miss Lois Stimeling. Gifts were presented to two members, Mrs. G. H. Stiles (Lynn Haebacker), and Mrs. Robert Wadsworth (Alice Emmert), who were married during the summer.

The chorus, which is developing into one of the city's outstanding musical organizations, had its beginning at the home of Mrs. E. M. Goodsell, and she is the group's capable director. Growing steadily in size and influence since its founding seven years ago, the organization is anticipating an active 1938-39 program, providing for several public appearances.

Weekly rehearsals will be started at 7:15 o'clock Monday evening at Mrs. Goodsell's residence, 317 East Fellows street. Mrs. Lyle M. Prescott, who has served continuously as accompanist since the group was founded, will be at the piano.

At the close of the business meeting last evening, unanimous appreciation was expressed for Mrs. Edwards' faithful services as president and her generous hospitality.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Invitations for two out of town meetings were read at yesterday's meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps in the G. A. R. hall. Mrs. Janna Ware, the chapter president, presided.

Mrs. Esther Walder suggested a past presidents' scramble luncheon for Oct. 10. Each member is asked to bring another. The members were reminded of the birthday anniversary, Oct. 21, of Mrs. Eva Fletcher of Sterling, who has been an invalid for several years, and plans were discussed for meeting at the home of a shut-in for a scramble dinner.

Reports were given of the district convention held last Saturday in Savanna, and Mrs. Walder, the retiring district president, was complimented for her work during the convention sessions. Seven Delegates in Maryland Decide Nomination of Candidate

Baltimore, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Seven men and women, members of a single county delegation to the Democratic convention, appeared today to have sealed Attorney-General Herbert R. O'Connor's nomination as the party's candidate for governor of Maryland.

Recounts and Maryland's second choice system of voting obscured the result of the primary election September 12 until yesterday.

Members of the Prince Georges county delegation to the Democratic nominating convention tomorrow, they decided last night to swing their seven votes to O'Connor, thus assuring him more than enough votes to clinch the nomination.

Until the Prince Georges votes were swung to O'Connor, he could muster only 72 convention votes. Now he has pledged to him a total of 79, four more than the 75 majority needed to nominate.

It appeared that his principal rival, Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, could command no more than 70 votes, even if he were given the benefit of unsettled recounts.

Thus O'Connor will become the Democratic standard-bearer against Republican Governor Harry W. Nice in the general election November 8.

It is estimated that motor transport gave employment—either directly or indirectly—to 6,037,000 persons in 1937.

DEMONSTRATION OF STRENGTH IS RUSSIANS' PLAN

Geneva, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Authoritative sources reported today that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, had proposed a mighty, three-power military demonstration to insure peace by a show of force.

This plan, said to have been suggested to London and Paris by the Russian diplomat, would call for a display of British, French and Russian naval, army and air force power as the only possible answer to Adolf Hitler of Germany.

Litvinoff's Geneva staff was busy with telephone calls to Paris and London and short wave radio talks to Moscow from the moment Hitler concluded last night the address in which he expressed his determination to annex Sudetenland and set Saturday as the deadline for Czechoslovakia to give it to him.

British, French and Russian delegations kept in close contact with envoys of Turkey, Rumania, Yugoslavia and other potential allies.

Sources close to the Russian delegation to the League of Nations declared Litvinoff's "peace through force" plan embraced military measures which would leave no doubt of an intention to fight if Hitler tried to take the Sudeten German part of Czechoslovakia by force.

Suggested measures of the plan, they said included: a demonstration flight of Russian and French bombers to Prague to show Hitler how quickly Czechoslovakia could get aid from the air; massing of large Russian forces on the Rumanian border where they would have to enter that country to reach Prague, and concentration of the British home fleet and the French Atlantic fleet in the North Sea.

PHOTOGRAPHY IN THE CLASSROOM

Subjects taught in grade and high schools—even many of those on college curricula—are foundation studies. Elementary knowledge of physics, geometry, arithmetic, English and science will further almost any career. Latin, bane of the high school freshman, is not something like measles, to be suffered and then forgotten, but is of value in developing proper use and understanding of the language we speak and write and read. Only a few years ago ability to use more than two fingers on a typewriter was regarded as requisite only to stenographic or secretarial pursuits; now ability to type is recognized as an asset in any profession and many trades.

And newest, perhaps, of the elementary knowledges which will stand the student in good stead, regardless of the vocation he may select, is photography.

"It has been observed that the tanning of the skin by exposure to the sun's rays is as much a photographic action as is the blackening of * * * horn silver, the observation of which may be said to have been the first step in the science of photography," writes Alfred T. Story in his book on The Story of Photography. Certainly early photographers were liable to be sunburned if they stood around in Old Sol's rays during the exposure period necessary for some of the early photographic plates!

The effect of light on horn silver apparently first was observed in 1556 by an alchemist, Fabricius. More than two centuries later, in 1777, a famous Swedish chemist, Charles William Scheele, made use of a Fabricius' discovery in experiments by which he demonstrated that violent rays of the spectrum act more energetically upon silver chloride than do the blue, yellow or red rays (especially red; "develop in red safe light" is the caution printed on containers of many of our modern films).

Three years later (the French claim) the first actual photograph was made by a Professor Charles, at the Louvre. Knowing that silver salts would blacken on exposure to light, he threw the silhouette of one of his pupils on a sheet of paper saturated with chloride of silver. The portion of paper exposed to light turned dark; that in shadow remained white. Of course, as soon as the pupil stepped aside, light struck the part of the paper he had shadowed, and that also darkened.

Similar experiments were made by other scientists, but they had no knowledge of the "hypo" of modern darkrooms, which fixes the image, and so the black and white "pictures" they produced had no permanency. They tried vanishing the images, an experiment which now sounds amusing, and they tried to wash away the salt from undarkened areas, but with little success. Only by examining the images solely by the weak light of candles or lamps could they preserve them for any length of time.

Joseph Niepce, a Frenchman, spent the last twenty years of his life (and a fortune inherited from his father) in photographic experiments. It was he who discovered the principle of the "negative," which, by a second operation, would exactly reproduce the original. But still no way of fixing the first image had been discovered, and the light necessary to that second operation destroyed the negatives.

Meanwhile another Frenchman, Louis Daguerre, was experimenting with the "camera obscura," forerunner of all modern cameras, which was able to "catch" projected images. His experiments were successful; earlier attempts to use the projection principle were fruitless because the "films" were not sensitive enough to react to reflected light, despite hours of exposure.

Collaborator with Niepce, Daguerre discovered (1839) that an image could be produced on a silver plate which had been subjected to the action of iodine, and then—by pure accident—that this image could be "developed" by use of mercury vapor after an exposure far shorter than that necessary otherwise. Soon thereafter it was discovered that the image could be "fixed" by use of common brine to wash away the iodide of silver not acted upon by light. Later Daguerre adopted hyposulphite of soda to dissolve the silver salt—and "hypo" is darkroom slang for fixing solution to this day.

Nearly 100 years have passed since Daguerre made his epochal discoveries; since then many chemists and inventors have made contributions almost if not equally as important. But the progress of photography has not been rapid until recently.

In the Moline Dispatch office is a man who has made a hobby of photography more than forty years. He recalls that in the late '90s Moline had scarcely a dozen "amateur" photographers, whose "candid cameras" needed such accessories as tripods, focusing cloths and ground glasses.

The first "camera obscura" failed to produce images after hours of exposure. By the aforementioned '90s Moline's amateur photographers were exposing at 1-25 second, although even that was not fast enough to permit them to take pictures of moving objects. Now there are hundreds of amateurs hereabouts who successfully use cameras which make exposures as brief as 1-500 second, or even 1-1000, and scientists have instruments so refined and film so sensitive that they can photograph a bullet as it leaves the rifle barrel, or "stop" a hummingbird's wings. And with growth in efficiency has come wide expansion in use.

Photography no longer is a mere plaything. It is an indispensable aid to modern news dissemination; photographs now may be transmitted through the medium of electricity almost as rapidly as may the printed word. Education has come to lean heavily on still and moving pictures. Photographs are accepted as court evidence, and are being used for preservation of copies of important documents. The FBI and lesser agencies for apprehension of criminals find photography a valuable weapon. Astronomers are well aware that films can "see" heavenly bodies which they themselves can not, despite efficiency of their telescopes. Infra-red photography uses rays which penetrate fog and haze which baffle the human eye, and even makes possible the taking of pictures where no ray of light is visible. Medical men have welcomed photography; their X-ray equipment represents only one of the ways in which they have employed principles which Scheele and Niepce and Daguerre discovered.

And not only is photography an adjunct to other arts, professions and sciences—it is an art, a profession and a science in itself.

It is true that modern films and cameras are so flexible that almost any one can take pictures. Almost any one can switch on an electric light, too, but that does not mean he has

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Diplomacy has a habit of playing weird pranks, and one of the weirdest was the quick of fate which picked up Wilbur John Carr from a tame and unexciting desk in the State Department and dropped him down in the most turbulent part of the world as Minister to Czechoslovakia.

Real fact was that Carr was being pensioned. His colleagues wanted to get him out of the way, thought he was too old, picked out Czechoslovakia as a good place where he could make no diplomatic blunders.

Carr had worked his way up from the lowly rank of clerk. He began 16 years ago, became Chief Clerk, Chief of the Consular Bureau, finally Assistant Secretary of State. He had charge of all administrative details of the consular service, handled American Embassy buildings, their equipment, clerks—all of the drudgery of diplomacy with none of its glamour.

After 43 years of routine, the State Department a couple of years ago decided that Carr had passed his usefulness and picked out a nice quiet berth for him—Czechoslovakia.

Diplomatic Jealousy And having picked that berth, almost every red-blooded diplomat in the service has suddenly become envious of Carr. He would like to trade places with him. Hugh Wilson, Ambassador to Germany, and a much younger man than Carr, flew to Prague to give advice. Carr was polite, but indicated that he could run his own legation.

Prior to that, Mott Gunther, famous son of the Gunther fur family and Minister to Roumania, telegraphed Carr that he was arriving on such-and-such a date and asked Carr to arrange a dinner for him with President Benes. He said he wanted to report on Czechoslovak conditions.

Gunther arrived as scheduled. Carr arranged the dinner as scheduled. But he did not invite the President of Czechoslovakia. He welcomed Gunther as a personal guest, but made it clear that he, Wilbur Carr, American Minister to Czechoslovakia, was quite capable of reporting on all matters pertaining to Czechoslovakia.

Minister Gunther, indeed, irritated, sent a special report to President Roosevelt complaining that Minister Carr had failed to cooperate. Roosevelt referred it to the State Department and the State Department did nothing.

Meanwhile Minister Carr has dug a bombproof cellar in the American Legation and is having the time of his life. He doesn't at all mind his retirement.

Divine Diplomacy Wise-crack heard around the State Department after the French and British left down the Champs Elysees:

"The Allies giveth and the Allies taketh away."

Yale Game The President did not stay up, as did the White House staff, to follow the count in the Yale-O'Connor primary battle in New York City, but he asked for the returns immediately upon awakening next morning. Told that the Yale-O'Connor fight was a Democratic nomination, Roosevelt, grinning, remarked:

"Well, we may have lost the schedule, but we won the Yale game."

More than most people knew, the O'Connor "purge" was the Yale-Harvard football game for Roosevelt—the most important of the season. In the first place, personal prestige was at stake; perhaps more than in any other race because it took place in Roosevelt's own State, and because there was a bitter personal vendetta between the two men.

Also, O'Connor, by his little-neck of all legislation in the House of Representatives. Sitting as chairman of the all-important Rules Committee, he could bottle up legislation favored by the New Deal or push out to the floor of the House bills which the Administration opposed. This he did time and time again to Roosevelt's discomfiture.

Even if O'Connor, by some fluke, should win on the Republican ticket, he would be off the vital Rules Committee. For he could have to begin at the very bottom of the Congressional ladder as a rookie Republican, with nothing to cheer him but unimportant committee assignments and the choruses of his colleagues.

This is something which no Congressman of O'Connor's one-time importance likes to contemplate.

O'Connor's Successor As long as he lives, September 21 will be stamped indelibly on the memory of Representative Adolph J. Sabath of Illinois. It was a day of great joy and great sorrow.

The joy was due to the failure of Representative O'Connor to win renomination, thus opening the way for Sabath to realize his life ambition and become chairman of the powerful Rules Committee.

The sorrow grew out of Czechoslovakia's submission to the Anglo-French ultimatum that it surrender to Hitler. A native of Bohemia, who emigrated to the U. S. at the age of 15, Sabath has been one of his motherland's most ardent boosters. His Nazi-forced dismemberment will be a great blow to him.

To the general public the florid little Chicagoan is unknown, but in his densely congested district he is an unbeatable hero, and among his colleagues in the House no one is more highly esteemed. Sabath's district covers Chicago's foreign-populated West Side, including part of the stockyards, a ghetto, a little Poland and famed Hull House. Although each election sees him nervous and apprehensive, Sabath has been re-elected for 17 consecutive terms.

As chairman of the Rules Committee, Sabath would be a loyal White House lieutenant. He is devoted to the President and has repeatedly gone down the line for him when the rest of the Rules Committee bolted.

Hurricane Luck Luckless member of the Roosevelt Administration in the New England hurricane disaster was Steve Gibbons, hard working Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. A dentist was the cause of his luck.

Steve's summer house is at Westhampton Beach, Long Island. On the morning before the hurricane struck, Mrs. Gibbons went to New York to have an abscessed tooth pulled. While she was gone the Gibbons home was blown to pieces.

Al Smith was not the first Catholic ever nominated for the Presidency. In 1872 Charles O'Connor, a Catholic, was nominated by one branch of the Democratic Party; he was defeated by Republican candidate Ulysses S. Grant.

Burning Ears If certain prominent Georgia office-holders felt a burning sensation in their ears during President's conference with U. S. Attorney Lawrence Camp last week, there was good reason for it. The President spoke his mind about the boys with a forceful voice that bodes them no good in the future.

He made it very clear that he was intimately acquainted with the inside details of the present senatorial campaign and knew just what the various leaders did and didn't do—particularly the latter.

The White House group is not saying anything about it publicly, but one of the things deeply resented was the failure of Governor Rivers, Senator Russell and Georgia members of the House to repudiate Senator Goggin's slurs at the New Deal as "communistic" and his comparison of the President's barnstorming speech to Sherman's invasion. It will be a long time before this silence is forgotten or forgiven.

Also held against Rivers was his refusal to take steps to pre-empt the Democratic primary. The fact has been carefully noted in the White House that in the two counties where the local election did take such measures, Camp was defeated.

The inner circle is watching with keen interest developments in the election-fraud contest being waged against George by former Georgia Governor Talmadge.

The Administration is keeping strict hands off the affair, but a safe bet that if Talmadge, after the state convention on October 3, should throw his hat into the ring against Camp, he would be repudiated around 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

A working knowledge of electricity and its principles. Before the amateur can be said to understand photography he must know something of the various film emulsions and their actions, of the chemistry of development, of how to expose under varying light conditions to secure desired results, of the use of filters and light meters, and even flash bulb synchronizers, and of pictorial composition.

Hence contention that, of the elementary studies which will stand the student in good stead, regardless of the vocation he may select, one is photography.

TEXT OF CZECH REJECTION OF HITLER DEMAND

Contents of Note Given Publicity Today by Czech Minister

London, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovak minister to London, today made public his government's note flatly refusing to accept Adolf Hitler's "final" terms for cutting up Czechoslovakia as the price of European peace.

Publication of the note, which was delivered Sunday to British Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax was considered in the light of a direct reply to Chancellor Hitler's address last night, when the fuhrer warned he would act if he did not get what he defined as Sudetenland by October 1.

This new aspect of frankness injected into the previous secret negotiations to stave off war was heightened by an announcement that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain would make a world broadcast at 8 P. M. today (1 P. M. C. S. T.).

Some observers believed Chamberlain would lay all his cards on the table just as Masaryk did in a strong bid to influence world opinion in favor of democratic nations and against nazi-fascist countries.

"Unconditionally Unacceptable." The note said: "My government wished me to declare x x x that Hitler's demands in their present form are absolutely and unconditionally unacceptable to my government."

"Against these new cruel demands my government feels bound to make their utmost resistance and we shall do so, God helping us."

When Chancellor Hitler uttered his demands to cheering nazi in Berlin last night there was no indication he knew the Czech government Sunday had told the British and French ministers it could not accept Hitler's ultimatum for large territorial concessions in Sudeten areas.

Masaryk's unusual step in publishing the note made the Czechoslovak government's stand absolutely clear and gave a direct answer to Hitler. Diplomatic notes passing between governments usually are not published without express agreement between the governments concerned.

Statement of Policy. Thus it appeared Masaryk's move was made with the approval of Chamberlain and Premier Edouard Daladier of France and constituted—if there were such agreement—a new statement of stern policy to be followed in concerted British, French and Czechoslovak action.

The note added that Czechoslovakia expected France and Great Britain to assist her.

Chamberlain's address, just 24 hours after Hitler broadcast the warning he would act if he did not have the Sudetenland October 1, was listed for transmission from all British stations, including a short-wave sender for the empire, Canada, and the United States.

The Czechoslovak note said the document and map presented by Hitler "is a de facto ultimatum of a sort usually presented to a vanquished nation and not a proposition to a sovereign state which has shown the greatest possible readiness to make sacrifices for the appeasement of Europe."

Czechs Amazed. "Not the smallest trace of such readiness for sacrifices has yet been manifested by Mr. Hitler's government."

"My government is amazed at the contents of the memorandum. The proposals go far beyond what we agreed to in the so-called Anglo-French plan."

"They deprive us of every safeguard for our national existence. The note, dated Sunday, significantly became public today, just after Hitler's strong speech yesterday. It continued:

"We are to yield up large proportions of our carefully prepared defenses and admit German armies deep into our country before we have been able to organize it on a new basis or made any preparations for its defense."

"Our national and economic independence would automatically disappear with the acceptance of Mr. Hitler's plan."

"The whole process of moving the population is to be reduced to panic flight on the part of those who will not accept the German nazi regime."

"They have to leave their homes without even the right to take their personal belongings or even, in the case of peasants, their cows."

Not "Nation of Slaves" "The nation of Saint Wenceslas, John Hus and Thomas Masaryk will not be a nation of slaves," the note concluded.

"We rely upon the two great western democracies, whose wishes we have followed much against our own judgment, to stand by us in our hour of trial."

The note was signed by Jan Masaryk, son of Czechoslovakia's founder and first president, Thomas Masaryk.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Far easier, Dr. Knight Dunlap, of California University, shows how women have steadily progressed during the past 40 years toward natural instead of artificial beauty. In the Gay Nineties and even gayer seventies and eighties with their busses, corsets, huge balloon sleeves and enough skirts to cover a battleship, and with nuzzles of false as well as natural hair, the real woman could be almost completely concealed or transformed. But with her natural dress of today, even though she may use more facial make-up, her true charms, defects and proportions are revealed, and with just as much genuine modesty as her grandmother possessed.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Not by a long shot. As E. L. Thorndike, psychologist, says, the one mark of a truly educated man is that he "knows when not to think for himself and when to hire somebody to do his thinking for him." The person who tries to do his own thinking or be his own lawyer practically always loses. Long ago I hired an insurance company to do my financial thinking for my old age and I am glad I did. The business manager of a chemical company who should try to do his own thinking would blow up his plant. Professor Thorndike has made a lot of wise remarks but none wiser than this one.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Intelligence, by its very nature, is ashamed when it makes a mistake. The more intelligence one has the more clearly he perceives his mistakes. Test of criminals show that, with the exception of the hysterical killer and the ingrown egotist, the ones with high intelligence have a keener sense of guilt and a greater desire to reform.

RAILROAD MEN ARE COMMITTED TO BIG STRIKE

BULLETIN

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt appointed a three-member fact-finding commission today to investigate the wage dispute between railroads and their employees.

Members of the commission are Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme Court, chairman; Professor Harry A. Mills of the University of Chicago, and Dean James M. Landis of the Harvard law school.

Under the railroad labor law, they will report within 30 days.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Nearly a million railroad workers— from section hands to streamliner engineers—were committed today to a nationwide strike this weekend but presidential intercession, postponing the walkout, was considered imminent.

The strike was ordered to combat a 15 per cent pay cut. Deadlines were fixed last yesterday by the chiefs of 19 rail brotherhoods after tabulating a strike poll.

The zero hour for 790,000 employees in 18 unions constituting the railway labor executives association was 6 P. M. Friday. The 160,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen were ordered to quit work at 12:01 A. M., Saturday.

All of the nation's major railroads were involved in the dispute.

President Roosevelt already has indicated he would appoint a fact-finding commission to study the dispute and make recommendations.

Under the railway labor act such action automatically would postpone a walkout and maintain existing wage scales for a 60-day period. Hence, the status quo apparently will remain until December 1.

The carriers decided on May 12 that a wage slash was imperative in view of their financial condition. The unions rejected the proposed cut and negotiations began on July 18.

The national mediation board entered the dispute on August 11 when the rail management and itary demonstration in the hope that a show of force by Russia, Britain and France would avert war.

Political quarters in Berlin attempted to discredit the British warning by declaring it did not come "from authoritative, official circles" and said France was relieved of any obligation to aid Czechoslovakia because Prague was refusing to keep an earlier promise to cede certain areas to Germany.

There was no official comment in Prague on Hitler's speech, but the government studied it and addressed the French and British to determine whether a basis existed for further negotiations.

In Paris sources close to the French government said France had answered the German chancellor's threat against Czechoslovakia last night by calling additional troops to the colors.

The French cabinet met this morning for an hour and 50 minutes, but officials would not say whether any momentous decisions were taken. Some sources predicted a special meeting of parliament might be called.

The British parliament has been recalled to meet tomorrow.

The London Stock Exchange was placed under rigid restrictions to prevent war panic. The bank of France raised its discount rate from two and one-half to three per cent as a result of the international crisis.

Only from Yugoslavia and Italy was there any sign of optimism. High fascists in Rome stressed that they considered Hitler's speech moderate and that they saw in it a hope that war might be avoided. Foreign office circles in Belgrade said they saw "peaceful tones" in the fuhrer's address.

British Prime—

ter said: "However much we may sympathize with a small nation confronted with a big, a powerful neighbor, we cannot in all the circumstances undertake to involve the whole British empire in war simply on her account."

"If we have to fight it must be on larger issues than that."

"I am, myself, a man of peace to the depths of my soul."

"Foreign conflict between nations is a nightmare to me. But if I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by fear of its force, I should feel that it must be resisted."

"Under such a domination the people who believe in liberty would not feel life worth living."

Chamberlain told his countrymen: "Meanwhile there are certain things we can and should do at home."

"Volunteers are still wanted for air raid precautions, for fire brigade and police reserves and for the territorial (reserve) units."

"I know that all of you, men and women alike, are ready to play your part in the defense of the country and I ask you to offer your services, if you have not already done so, to the local authorities, who will tell you if you are wanted and in what capacities."

"Don't be alarmed if you hear of men being called up to man anti-aircraft defenses or ships."

"These are only precautionary measures such as a government must take in times like these, but they do not necessarily mean that we have determined on war or that war is imminent."

"For the present I ask you to wait as calmly as you can the events of the next few days."

"As long as war has not begun, there is always hope that it may be prevented, and you know that I am going to work for peace until the last moment."

"Good night."

HITLER REPLIES TO ROOSEVELT'S NOTE THIS MORN

Gives His Views Concerning Origin of Problems in Sudetenland

Berlin, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler today replied to President Roosevelt's appeal for European peace with the assertion that "I completely and in every way share your views concerning the immeasurable consequences of a European war."

"Be assured that I thoroughly appreciate the high-minded intentions underlying your argument," the reichsfuehrer telegraphed in response to the message Roosevelt sent yesterday to the leaders of Germany, Czechoslovakia, Britain and France.

Roosevelt appealed for continuance of peaceful negotiations in an effort to solve the Czechoslovak crisis and avoid war.

"For that very reason," said the chancellor after his reference to the "immeasurable consequences" of such a conflict, "I can and must decline every responsibility of the German people and its leadership if, contrary to all my efforts to date, further developments should actually lead to an outbreak of hostilities."

"Origin of Problems"

"In order to form correct judgment concerning the Sudetic problem now under discussion it is indispensable to direct thoughts to events in which in the last analysis the origin of these problems and their dangers are rooted."

"The German people in the year 1918 put down their arms in the faith that the conclusion of peace with the opponents at that time would bring a realization of the principles and ideals which were solemnly proclaimed by President Wilson and just as solemnly accepted by all the powers at war as binding upon them."

"Never in history has the faith of the people been more disgracefully betrayed than happened then and the conditions of peace forced upon the vanquished nations in the suburbs of Paris (Versailles) has fulfilled none of the promises given."

"On the contrary they created a political regime in Europe that reduced the vanquished nations to Pariahs, stripped of all rights, and that was recognized from the beginning by all judicious persons as untenable."

"One of the points which most clearly revealed the character of the dictates of 1919 was the founding of the Czechoslovak state and the fixing of its boundaries without in any way taking into account history and nationality."

"Sudetenland Always German"

"Sudetenland, too, was included in it, although this region has always been German and although its inhabitants unanimously declared their desire for Anschluss (union) with the German Reich after the destruction of the Hapsburg monarchy."

"Thus the right of self-determination that was proclaimed by President Wilson as the most important foundation for national life was simply denied the Sudeten Germans."

"But that was not enough."

"In the treaties of 1919 certain obligations, which according to their wording were very far-going, were imposed upon the Czechoslovak state as regards the German racial element."

"From the very beginning these obligations were not kept."

"Charges League Failed."

"The League of Nations failed completely to carry out the task assigned to it, namely, to guarantee the fulfillment of these obligations."

"Since then Sudetenland has been engaged in heaviest combat for the preservation of its Germanity."

"It was a natural and unavoidable development that after the German Reich regained its strength and Austria was re-united with it that pressure of the Sudeten Germans increased for maintaining their culture and for becoming closely associated with Germany."

"Despite the loyal attitude of the Sudeten German party and its leaders the points at issue between them and the Czechs became ever more pronounced."

"From day to day it became more clearly evident that the government in Prague was not willing to grant most of the elementary rights of the Sudeten Germans."

"On the contrary it attempted to bring about the Czechization of Sudetenland with ever more forceful methods."

"It was inevitable that this procedure led to ever greater and more serious tension."

"Maintained Restraint."

"The German government at first in nowise interfered with this development and maintained its calm restraint even when in May of this year the Czechoslovak government proceeded to mobilize its army on the pretext, manufactured of pure cloth, that German troops had been concentrated."

"The fact that Germany at that time refrained from taking military counter-measures has merely served, however, to strengthen the intransigence of the government in Prague."

"The progress of negotiations by the Sudeten German party with the government for a peaceful solution clearly show this."

"These negotiations brought definite proof that the Czechoslovak government had no idea of tackling the Sudeten German problem really from its very foundation and to bring it to a just solution."

"As a consequence, conditions in the Czechoslovak state, as is generally known, have become entirely insufferable during the last weeks."

"Political persecution and economic suppression have plunged the Sudeten Germans into unspeakable misery."

"To characterize these conditions it is sufficient to refer to the following:

"At this moment we count 214,000 Sudeten German fugitives who had to leave their house and hearth in their ancestral homeland and who brought themselves into safety across the German border because they saw therein the only and last possibility for evading the revolting Czech regime of force and bloodiest terror."

"He ended with these words:

"It is now solely in the hands of the Czechoslovak government and not in the hands of the German government to decide whether it desires peace or war."

"Countless dead, thousands of injured, tens of thousands of persons arrested and imprisoned, desolated villages are the accusing witnesses before world opinion of an outbreak of hostilities carried out for a long time by the Prague government which you in your telegram rightly fear."

"Entirely aside from the German economic life in the Sudeten German territory for 20 years systematically destroyed by the Czech government, which already shows all the signs of ruin, which you anticipate as the result of an outbreak of war, these are the facts which compelled me in my Nurnberg speech of September 13 to state before the whole world that the deprivation of rights of the three and one-half millions of Germans in Czechoslovakia must be stopped and that these people if they of themselves cannot find justice and help, must receive both from the German Reich."

"Made 'Last Attempt'"

"However, to make a last attempt to reach the goal in a peaceful way, I made concrete proposals for the solution of the problem in a memorandum delivered on September 23 to the British premier, which, in the meantime has been made public."

"Since the Czechoslovakian government had previously declared itself already to be in agreement with the British and French governments that the Sudeten German settlement area would be separated from the Czechoslovakian state and joined to the German Reich, the proposals of the German memorandum contemplate nothing else than to bring about a prompt and equitable fulfillment of that Czechoslovakian promise."

"It is my conviction that you, Mr. President, when you realize the whole development of the Sudeten German problem from its inception to the present day, will recognize that the German government has truly not been lacking either in patience or a sincere desire for a peaceful understanding. It is not Germany who is to blame for the fact that there is any Sudeten German problem at all, and that the present unjustifiable circumstances have arisen from it."

"The terrible fate of the people affected by the problem no longer admits of a further postponement of its solution. The possibilities of arriving at a just settlement by agreement are therefore exhausted with the proposals of the German memorandum. It does not rest with the German government, but with the Czechoslovakian government alone, to decide, whether it wants peace or war."

"The body of a woman found in the ocean off Coney Island Sunday was identified early today as that of Mrs. Georgia Peiker, wife of Harry C. Peiker, deputy general manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in Washington."

Mrs. Peiker vanished Saturday night from the French liner Champlain, en route to New York. Contents of two letters she left with her 11-year-old daughter, Nan, also aboard the ship were not disclosed.

The body was found by the crew of a fishing boat, who at first believed she was a hurricane victim. Identification was made by John Howard Haley, an HOLC official here and friend of the Peikers.
